

Do Medigap Plans Cover Foreign Travel?

Description

If you are someone who likes to travel internationally, you may ask the question “Do Medigap Plans Cover Foreign Travel?” This is a good and important question to ask, particularly since Medicare’s coverage in foreign countries is limited to very specific/unique situations.

Medicare coverage within the U.S. and its territories:

If you have Original Medicare (i.e. not an Advantage plan), you will have coverage without interruption within the United States and its territories, including Guam and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Medicare coverage for foreign travel outside the United States:

If you plan to go overseas and you have Original Medicare only, there is no coverage for any healthcare costs. You will be responsible for all the costs. Thus, it would be prudent for you to consider getting travel insurance before you leave the U.S. Travel insurance is relatively inexpensive, starting for as little as $18. Make sure the plan you choose includes medical emergencies, as well as lost luggage, etc. That said, there are some unique situations where Medicare does cover you in a foreign country:

- Travel on a cruise ship which is located 6 hours or less from a U.S. port, is considered domestic travel;
- You will be able to be treated at a Canadian hospital, if you are passing through Canada, on your way going or coming back from Alaska;
- If you have a medical emergency in the U.S., but there happens to be a foreign hospital closer by, then you can visit the foreign hospital without incurring a penalty.
- If you have a medical non-emergency, you can visit a foreign hospital without any penalty, if you live closer to that hospital than a hospital in the U.S;

Your entire hospital stay will be covered for all of the above exceptions. Furthermore, if you are not admitted to the hospital, your emergency room visit will also be covered. Be aware that only your medical emergency treatment, not any medical transportation costs or follow up care will be covered until you return to the U.S.

- Even though plans E, H, I and J are no longer available, if you were enrolled in them prior to June 1, 2010, you would still have the foreign travel benefit as described above.

It is recommended that if you intend to travel overseas for any extended length of time, there are other options for health insurance while outside of the U.S. This type of healthcare coverage is called, "expatriate insurance". However, it is not standard for all countries and benefits may not be the same for each country. So, before you plan that trip, make sure you check with your Medigap insurance company and/or your insurance agent, to verify what coverage is included. You can also go online at Medicare.gov, contact your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) or your State Insurance Department.
