

2026 Medigap Plan G Rates

Description

IMPORTANT NOTE: This is an updated article that originally contained rates for 2023 then later for all years up to 2026. The information contained in this article is current as of March 2026. A current list of Plan G rates can be sent via email. You should also note that Medigap rates do NOT go by the calendar year, so there is no such thing as "2025 rates" or "2026 rates". The annual Oct 15-Dec 7 period, mistakenly called "open enrollment", is for Part D plans and does not have anything to do with Medigap.

Medigap Plan G rates can vary widely, depending on several variables including what part of the country you are in, your age, and your gender (Get Plan G pricing in your area by email).

The short answer for "how much does Plan G cost" is "it depends on where you live, how old you are and what gender you are". In most areas of the country, Plan G rates start at around $100-125/month (65 year old female rates). However, some states that are lower than that and some that are much, much higher. To give you an idea, here are a few examples of current (February 2026) Plan G (or Medicare G) prices in different parts of the country.

Important note: The Plan G rates below are for example purposes only. Rates can change monthly and are dependent on a handful of factors. What we do is provide all Plan G rates and ratings and help Medicare beneficiaries compare and sign up for the best Plan G deal in their area. Don't trust other websites that require you to provide your phone number just to obtain the rates. For a list of up to the minute current Plan G rates in your area delivered by email, click here: Medigap Plan G Rates by Email.

The Plan G rates shown below are for a 65-year old, non-smoking, female, with no household discount applied, and they are the lowest current rates in that respective area (every insurance company charges different prices):

EXAMPLE 1 (ALL OF NC): Medigap Plan G Rates start at $97/month.

EXAMPLE 2 (PANHANDLE FL): $182/month

EXAMPLE 3 (SOUTHERN CA): $173/month

EXAMPLE 4 (WESTERN PA): $131/month

EXAMPLE 5 (DALLAS TX): $117/month

EXAMPLE 6 (CENTRAL INDIANA): $112/month

EXAMPLE 7 (DENVER CO): $133/month

EXAMPLE 8 (UPSTATE SC): $104/month

EXAMPLE 9 (IOWA): $105/month

In addition, Medigap Plan G prices can vary within the same geographical area by as much as $100/month with different insurance companies, although the coverage is completely identical. With Medicare Supplement plans, the companies are allowed to determine what they charge for their plans, although the coverage is Federally-standardized. In other words, you can end up paying much, much more for the exact same coverage that works the same way. If you have been with the same Medigap Plan G since you started on Medicare, it is almost certain that you can reduce your costs for equivalent coverage that works the exact same way.

How Can I Get Medicare Supplement Plan G Prices?

Unfortunately, most insurance companies no longer openly publish their rates online without requiring you to meet with an agent or enter your personal information first. So, although some companies put their Medicare Supplement Plan G prices online, the information will be slanted towards that one company and will not be a full picture of what is available to you.

Medicare.gov has recently started listing information about Medigap G prices online; however, Medicare has no oversight of Medigap (the states do) and their information is not always up to date, does not always reflect all applicable discounts/rate actions and is generally not a 100% accurate source.

There are two options for obtaining the prices for a Medicare Supplement Plan G. One, you can contact your state department of insurance to get a list of all the companies offering supplement plans in your state — usually around 30-35 companies. From there, you can contact each insurance company's call center and set an appointment to have an agent from each company come to your home so you can meet with them and obtain the rates for their plans. Sounds enjoyable, right?!

The much-simpler, more consumer-friendly alternative is to contact a trusted, verified independent Medicare insurance broker. Whether that broker is 65Medicare.org or someone else, using an independent broker gives you the opportunity to compare multiple options in a centralized, unbiased place. It costs you nothing and can help you make a prudent choice initially as well as provide ongoing service. The broker works with you based on your needs and is incentivized to put you in a plan that you are happy with and that fits your needs, not one that helps their employer's bottom line. ## What Does Plan G Cover?

If you are already looking into Medicare Supplement Plan G prices, you likely are already familiar with what Plan G covers. But if not, here's a brief overview.

First and foremost, here is the Medigap standardized plans chart - this chart shows the plans that all insurance companies are allowed to offer. If a company is going to sell Medicare Supplement plans, it has to be one or more of the plans listed on this chart.

Plan G, in particular, covers all the "gaps" in Medicare, with the one exception of the Medicare Part B deductible. This deductible is currently (2026) $283/year. So, if you have a Plan G, the plan will pay the Medicare co-pays, coinsurance, and the Medicare Part A deductible - your only out-of-pocket costs would be the Medicare Part B deductible amount, currently $283/year.

How Do I Sign Up for a Plan G?

So, once you understand what Plan G covers and have obtained the Medicare Supplement Plan G prices, you can move to the next step of comparing the specific options in your area and enrolling in a plan. Although this is the most important step, it is also the easiest one to do.

The days of the 20+ page insurance application are long gone (unless you like that sort of thing). Most insurance companies now offer online applications that are streamlined, easy to do and painless. In particular, if you are turning 65, you in your initial open enrollment period. During this time period, you do not have to answer any medical questions or "qualify" to obtain a plan.

If you are already working with an independent broker, that broker can provide you the application or the online link to your customized application so you can enroll. If you are not working with a broker yet, you can contact the specific company you want to sign up for and they will (in most cases) direct you to a broker that can enroll you. If you want our service and assistance enrolling, find out what our clients say/why you should work with us and contact us to get started.
