What Preventive Care Services Are Covered Under Medicare Part B?

In the last several years, the amount of preventive services that are covered under Medicare has gradually increased. Contrary to popular misconception, Medicare actually does cover many needed preventive care services/tests. These services are covered under Medicare Part B.

So, how do you determine what preventive care is covered under Medicare Part B? Your doctor's office should have access to and information about which services are Medicare-covered and how frequently. The biggest "catch" that we see with this is that certain tests are covered in multiple year intervals. For example, Medicare covers bone density screenings every two years, and if you have the testing more frequently than that even if it's just a few days before the two year mark you could find yourself with a non-covered charge.

On preventive services that ARE covered by Medicare, Medicare Part B typically covers the charges in full. So, as far as preventive care services, what does Medicare Part B cover? Here is a listing of Medicare-covered services/tests:

- Diabetes screening
- Diabetes services and supplies
- Smoking cessation
- HIV screening
- Depression screening
- Heart disease screening
- Glaucoma screening
- Medical Nutritional therapy
- Bone Mass measurement
- Obesity screening and counseling

- Mammograms
- Pap smears, pelvic exams and clinical breast exams
- Colon cancer screening
- Prostate cancer screening
- Flu Shot
- Pneumonia vaccine
- Hepatitis C Screening
- Lung cancer screening
- Annual wellness visit
- Welcome to Medicare preventive visit

Medicare covers more preventive care services than they have in p more than most people realize. It is crucial to understand the time often you can have certain screenings to avoid them being non-cov

There are other Medicare-covered preventive care services that may not have been listed above.

How Does a Medigap Plan Work with Medicare Part B?

If you are signing up for a Medigap plan to go with your "traditional" Medicare Part A and B, you may be wondering how the plans will work together.

First and foremost, it is important to understand that Medicare is your primary coverage. The Medigap plan acts as a secondary coverage to regular Medicare.

A Medigap plan can be used anywhere that Medicare is accepted "regardless of what Medigap company you use. Medigap plans are non-network plans, so if a doctor takes Medicare (your primary coverage), they will also take the Medigap plan. Medigap claims are handled through the Medicare "crossover" system.

If your doctor takes Medicare, he/she must take your Medigap plan are non-network plans that are secondary to Medicare and can be u Medicare is accepted nationwide.

As far as coverage, Medigap plans are designed to fill in the "gaps" in regular Medicare, including Medicare Part B. Medicare Part B generally pays 80% after the Part B deductible, and the Medigap plans pay the remaining 20% with some plans also picking up that Part B deductible.
